Oh, man... so much better than just thinking about Charlie and Laura's wedding — you know they're having it in the middle of nowhere, in the middle of summer, on a giant piece of property, where half the guests are likely to get food poisoning from the reception catering, where everyone will have on their best summer clothes but it will still be freezing as hell, where the pastor will be his dad's age, and where Charlie will scream at the DJ to turn up the wedding-band vocals. So glad I don't have to worry about that. Hope they stay frosty their whole lives. Look, even when they get older the kids will be OLD. I'm guessing at least one of their kids are around 20 now, when my brother and sister and I were the same age. Yeah we grew up on a farm, but we're used to it now. We could've taken them to a concert or a bar, but what fun would that have been? Besides, even at 10 or 12 they won't be able to handle the booze. And where are they going to go with their college friends? They'll stick around for a few weeks and then be going off to new lives. Anyway, the kids are old enough that they'd be putting up with this for their entire lives. And they'll have lots of kids of their own. It's not about being a bore — it's what they want to do, I'm sure. It's their big day and it's all about them and they'll do whatever they want. As for the frosty thing: well, one of them will be the corny one and the other will want to show the world that they're different. Or it'll be Charlie who's over the top. As far as I'm concerned, their wedding is none of my business, though I can say they would probably be happier with someone they like and respect. We decided what we were going to do at the wedding as soon as we knew we were going to get married. This was one f678ea9f9e
